SATURDAY : : : September 24th

The arrival of the Kaimiloa yesterday attracted hundreds of people along the city front.

The electric light will soon illuminate our streets. Material was received by the Australia which will enable Mr. Faulkner to make all necessary repairs to the dynamo.

The Supreme Court of Foresters recently in session at Montreal, resolved that "bartenders, saloon keepers and hotel keepers, in whose houses intoxicating liquors are sold, be put in the prescribed class."

The Assistant Surgeon of the U. S. S. Junata, Dr. F. N. Ogden, will shortly visit the leper settlement, Kalawao, Molokai, by permission of the Board of Health. While there he will make a study of leprosy in its various forms, and report the result to Washington.

THE "PLANTERS" MONTHLY.

The "Planters" Monthly" for September is out. It is full of the most interesting matter, some of which, if we had space, would be reproduced in these columns. For instance, there is an article on the Samoan Islands, by Mr. Henry F. Poor, which is exceedingly well written and full of interest, particularly so in view of the prominence the islands have gained in the outside world the past few months.

In referring to the meeting of the Planters' Labor and Supply Company in October, the "Monthly" says: This meeting is one in which all classes of the country take the interest, for the information given and the discussions raised do not bear solely on matters of interest to the sugar planter, but take a wider field and open up lines of thought for every agriculturalist, and even give very solid ideas to the politician. We have heard sound political doctrine talked among the planters at their meetings long before the general public cared to express itself decidedly upon the matter. * * * The best thought and the best workers of the Islands will be present together, and good, common sense views will be expressed. Nothing can be better for the planters and mill owners than this yearly meeting. There is an interchange of thought and practical ideas by word of mouth which no amount of mere writing can facilitate. The road is clear before the planter; the government of the country is on a solid basis; economy is the watchword of the Administration, and yet money is to be spent where needed upon improved roads, upon landings, and the general facilities which the planter requires as a return for the taxes he pays. With intelligence and skill to get the most out of his cane at the cheapest rate, in spite of the dull sugar market, the Hawaiian planter will succeed.

G. A. R.

The Annual Camp Fire of the Geo. W. DeLong Post, No. 45—A Pleasant Social Reunion.

The fifth annual camp fire of the local Post of the G. A. R. was held last evening in the old Armory on Queen street, and was a most successful affair. The gathering was a large one; the speeches were replete with eloquence, wit and wisdom, whilst liberal provision had been made by the commissariat for the entertainment of the veterans and their guests.

The Post was represented by Commander R. W. Laine, who presided; Senior Vice Commander V. V. Ashford, Junior Vice Commander J. T. White, Quartermaster R. Jay Green, Adjutant J. F. Noble, O. P. Wm. Williams, Surgeon J. S. McGrew, Comrades G. W. Merrill, N. B. Emerson, W. C. Merritt, S. McKeague, R. M. Overend, W. C. Wilder, F. Sherman, L. Adler, J. H. Lovejoy, John Ross, Thomas Short, W. McCandless and W. R. Lawrence. There were also present visiting Comrades R. W. McChesney, Dr. J. E. Grant, Cowes and Burnap. The list of invited guests was a lengthy one and included Hon. J. T. Waterhouse, Hon. W. R. Castle, Hon. D. Dayton, Rev. W. B. Oleson, Captain Davis and Dr. Morgan of the U. S. S. Junata, Chief Engineer A. Kirby of the U. S. S. Adams, Mr. W. M. Leman, Mr. S. B. Dole, Mr. M. D. Monsarrat, Mr. Jules Tavernier and many more. Professor H. Berger and the members of the Royal Hawaiian Band lent their aid to enliven the evening, which they did with a numerous and appropriate selection of music.

The proceedings were opened with a blessing pronounced by the Rev. W. B. Oleson. The beans and coffee were next on the programme, added to which were sundry delicacies with which the veterans were probably unfamiliar in the field. These having been dispatched, Commander Laine spoke a few words of welcome to the hospitable board to all present—residents of the town, friends from elsewhere and comrades of other posts. He then gave the toast of "His Majesty and the Royal Family," which was drunk amid the strains of the Hawaiian National Anthem.

Mr. J. F. Field, of the All-Star Company now in town, gave a masterly exhibition of his skill on the accordion, and was several times encored.

The next toast was "The United States of America," honored with the customary enthusiasm, and responded to by Comrade G. W. Merrill, U. S. Minister Resident. After referring to the principles for which the veterans had fought and established, and upon which the great American Republic had taken its place among the family of nations, he pointed out how frequently those same principles were seen cropping up in other countries. Whether under the name of Republic or Constitutional Monarchy, it mattered not, they were essentially the same. In the observance of that principle which forms the basis of the American Republic and which places the supreme power in the hands of the people, other nations were gradually coming up to their standard. So far as he could speak on behalf of his country, he could say that America extended to all the right hand of fellowship and had at heart the welfare and interests of the people of Hawaii. She hoped and believed that statesmanship would prevail which would enable Hawaii to maintain the stand she already had among the nations of the earth. He believed that Hawaii was capable of self-government and the maintenance of its independence upon a sound basis. From those who had taken part in the recent reform movement the members of the Post were inseparable [applause], for they had assisted the latter in establishing a principle which will never die. Those principles were engrafted on all civilized nations, principles for which they had fought and for which the bones of many were laid low in the dust, those fundamental principles whereby the people themselves shall be the controlling influence, and which, exercised in a proper and moderate manner, are destined to be the controlling influence of the world. [Applause.]

"The Army and Navy of the United States" was responded to by Comrade G. J. Burnap, Chief Engineer of the U. S. S. Vandavia.

Mr. Frank M. Clarke, of the All-Star Company, created much merriment by some comic recitations, for which he was repeatedly recalled.

The toast of "Our Commander-in-Chief, General Fairfax," was next honored, and was followed by three lusty cheers.

Comrade Dr. J. S. McGrew responded. He said he knew him pretty well, and could say he was a man who always did his duty, and was doing it now. In the course of an interview the other day with a newspaper man the subject of this toast said that the condition of the Grand Army was improving. He was an energetic officer, and if he were to become a candidate for the Presidency the speaker would vote for him.

The next on the list was "The Governor of Oahu, our Old-time Friend," followed by "Our Guests." The latter toast was eloquently responded to by Mr. W. M. Leman in a lengthy speech. He expressed the pleasure and surprise he felt on landing here a few weeks ago at finding a Post of the Grand Army.

Pleasant as it always was to meet a countryman in a foreign land, never was pleasure greater than when on coming here he had grasped the hands of veterans who, bidding farewell to the blandishments of social life, severing the ties that were dear to them, had gone forth to fight for freedom. After presenting a graphic picture of the soldiers leaving their homes at duty's call, he said he regarded as a red letter day that on which he was a guest at their genial camp-fire. Another consideration was that they had just passed through a civil contest for the very principles for which they had fought on their mother soil. After referring to the recent struggle, he went on to say that he had visited Hawaii some twenty-three years ago at another memorable period of her history. A convention had been called by Kamehameha V. to draw up a new Constitution. He was present at its last session when His Majesty cut the Gordian knot and dismissed the convention in a very summary manner, by saying in effect, "Gentlemen, I will give you a new Constitution, and you may get up and get it." He continued to dilate with impassioned eloquence on the struggle for freedom, the memory of which the Post was perpetuating, and the motives which actuated those who took part in it, his remarks being frequently interrupted by bursts of applause.

"Hawaii, Our Adopted Country," was responded to by Rev. W. B. Oleson in a thoughtful speech, in which he traced the gradual evolution of history whereby one nation derived its existence from another. The American nation had sprung out from an older nation, as the British had done before it. Many Hawaiians to-day were of foreign descent, and Hawaii was destined to become an influential land.

Dr. Emerson also responded to this toast.

Vice-Commander Ashford spoke to that of "The Ladies," giving a succinct resume of the majority of remarkable women recorded in history from the days of ancient Rome down to the present time.

The remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse, and the gathering broke up at a late hour.
